

SUSTAINABILITY COUNCIL

The university's Sustainability Council will develop and facilitate the implementation of the institution's sustainability plan which includes environmental, economic and social components. This plan will be designed to address our goal to institutionalize the three spheres of sustainability into all university activities promoting academic excellence, student success, partnerships and innovation. The STARS (Sustainability, Tracking, Assessment and Rating System) framework developed by AASHE (the Association for the Advancement of Sustainability in Higher Education) will be utilized for guidance and strategic planning purposes. Additionally, the council will: provide advice and counsel to the President and President's Council, including specific actions and/or policy changes relating to sustainability; monitor the implementation of the university's sustainability plan, meeting quarterly with the President to discuss progress; encourage and endorse education programs and professional development opportunities that promote an increased understanding of the broader sense of sustainability and its importance to our campus community; advocate for resources to support university sustainability initiatives.
